

CHARTER SCHOOLS

Form W. K. H. S. A. A.
With Prof. Long,
Secretary.

Representatives from Paducah, Hopkinsville, Owensboro and Madisonville met at the Y. M. C. A. building Friday afternoon and perfected the Western Kentucky High School Athletic Association, which will be conducted similar to the Southern Intercollegiate Association. Prof. G. D. Collins was elected president, Prof. Craig, of Paducah, vice president; Prof. Herschel Long, of Hopkinsville, secretary, all being coaches in their schools.

The other three representatives, Charles Jarrett, of Hopkinsville; Fain King, of Paducah, and Cecil Jake, of Owensboro, students, will form an advisory board. They will make out schedules for the games of all sports and make arrangements for the holding of big track meets which will be a feature of the Association. By making out a schedule of games the championship can be easily figured. All disputes must be placed before this board, who will act in conjunction with the president.

No graded school students are eligible to enter a contest or no person can play over four years. If a team is caught playing a student who does not take three studies and is otherwise not eligible the school will be debarred from athletics for one year.

Henderson, Princeton and Pembroke did not send representatives to the meeting.

By three-fourths vote of the charter schools any school can be admitted into the Association.

The Association will exert its authority for the first time the next football season.

ROMEO AND JULIET

To Be Presented By Mrs.
Hannibal A. Williams, at Bethel College.

Mrs. Hannibal A. Williams, of New York, Interpreter of Shakespeare, will give the whole play of Romeo and Juliet at Bethel Female College, next Monday night at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Williams began her career as a literary artist in 1893 in New York, where under her maiden name of Jean Stuart Brown, she appeared more than 100 nights.

In scores of university towns, and in the chief cities of the United States, Mrs. Williams has appeared and fairly won the plaudits of both press and public. Professors in a hundred colleges have commended her expression and interpretation of classic literature.

Nor is her reputation limited to her native land. During a recent professional tour of the Antipodes and Orient covering a period of five years the English speaking people before whom she appeared in the twelve foreign countries visited, found much to admire in her scholarly presentation of the great dramas of Browning, and of Shakespeare's matchless plays.

A Sample Endorsement.

HENRY W. ROLFE, M. A., (Amherst).
Professor of Greek, Leland Stanford, Jr., University; formerly Asst. Professor of English Literature, University of Chicago, says:

"For one person to render a play of Shakespeare's within the limit of two hours, omitting nothing that is essential to the development of character or plot, delicately suggesting by voice and manner and occasional word of explanation the characteristics of all the leading personages of the drama, would seem to be an impossibility, and yet both Mr. and Mrs. Williams succeed in doing this. The judicious student of Shakespeare will derive more pleasure from hearing the one or the other of these artists than from seeing the plays given upon the stage unless by the best of companies. They do what only the supremely good actors are equal to; they put the imagination on the right track and then let it work for itself. Their recitals may be commended to every one who cares for great literature adequately and charmingly rendered."

Admission 50 cents, for the benefit of the college.

LAST SHOW.

Closing the Season at The Opera House.

"The best play I ever saw" is the verdict of all who have had the pleasure of witnessing The Man on The Box. A rich love story of a young soldier who, in a spirit of adventure, takes the place of a coachman to be near the woman he loves, and in so doing saves her father from ruin and wins the choice of his heart. The many amusing situations in which he is placed as her groom and butler unravels the prettiest and funniest as well as the highest class comedy in the English language, and you should not attend this play in case you have any ailment that it would hurt you to laugh, for you will laugh and keep on laughing and remember The Man on The Box longer than any other play you have ever witnessed. At Opera House, Friday, April 28.

HAS TWO WIVES

Kolb or Cobb as the Case,
May be, in Deep Trouble.

Karl Kolb, the bridegroom accused of bigamy, is still in jail and without any apparent defense except the claim that he thought he was divorced. The Paducah Sun says the suit of Mrs. Beulah Kolb against Karl Kolb, is still pending. It was filed Jan. 27. Kolb seems to be in a very serious predicament. His wife of a week, Miss Edna Boyd, is at her home here.

BIG BATCH

Of Cross Ties Floated Down
Pond River.

The tie company, which has been purchasing and working up cross ties in the Kirksmansville neighborhood for some time, batched 80,000 a few days ago and floated them down Pond River to a point about fifteen miles below Bakers port, when the water went down. The ties will remain at that place until there is another rise in the river, when they will be floated to Evansville and disposed of.

The hard rains last Tuesday raised the streams here considerably. Mr. L. S. Oliver, our rural route mail carrier, informed us that afternoon that the water ran in his buggy about six inches at Bethel creek, near Pembroke, that morning.

Hurrah! for Pembroke. She went dry by thirty-one majority. That rule wont work of saying that who key makes a town. We know several instances where it is almost unsafe for ladies to go to Pembroke. The people that go to a wet town from a dry one, only go to buy what key and annoy people all the way back home. We are glad she voted dry and hope she will stay dry. The continued rains here this week have made the roads muddy again.
